Global Business Consulting

As organizations expand, they provide a target rich environment for malicious actors, and modern organizations must have a clear understanding of the challenges involved in the protection of the larger threat landscape. Organizations must shift from the less effective traditional, reactive model to the modern, proactive dynamic defense model.

Adapting security practices to support evolving business needs

It is essential that organizations comprehend the intricacies associated with safeguarding their increasingly vast threat landscape and adapt to those intricacies as the business grows. A reactive approach to security proves not effective in today's digital world, to adequately address the challenges security leaders are facing, such as:

- Planning the business security strategy, implementing policies and building practices to protect the business as it evolves and grows
- Identifying and implementing the appropriate tools to minimize the risk of a business falling victim to an attack
- Understanding threats and emerging attack patterns, as well as how to leverage an organization's defenses and controls
- Communicating effectively with leadership to provide end-to-end visibility into the security atmosphere of the organization
- Availability of personnel with the right level of cybersecurity expertise

Security Operations Approach:

Securing the entire enterprise by tackling these four key themes:

Plan, Build, Run

Without smoothly functioning security operations, organizations may be at risk of inadequate response and detection of incidents. Planning the business security strategy, building a SOC that focuses on how to best protect the business, and implementing the tools to do so is paramount to minimize the risk of a business falling victim to an attack.

Design & Defense

Cybersecurity professionals must be able to understand threats and emerging attack patterns and leverage an organization's defenses and controls. Protiviti experts guide organizations toward a forward-facing posture of solution design for prevention, detection, and response.

Policy & Reporting Structure

Our team helps organizations understand how organizational security processes can be leveraged to help professionals develop strong policies and reporting structure to provide leadership with end-to-end visibility into the security atmosphere of the organization.
